UNDERSTANDING THE SPORT

HOW IT ALL BEGAN

The first gun clubs emerged in Germany in the 13th century, and the activity grew with the technological advancements in weapons and ammunition. It was regulated as a sport in the 19th century, a fact that led to the founding of the International Union of National Shooting Federations and Associations, in 1907, currently the International Shooting Sport Federation (ISSF).

Shooting debuted at the Toronto 1976 Games and has featured at every Games since then. It featured 12 events – three men's, three women's and six mixed.

ABOUT THE COMPETITION

Athletes with different impairments compete together in three classes:

- SH1 pistol – athletes with lower limb impairment and/or upper limb impairment in the non-shooting arm
- SH1 rifle – athletes with lower limb impairment
- SH2 rifle – athletes with an upper limb impairment, who require the use of a spring-mounted stand to support the weight of the rifle

There is support equipment, such as shooting tables and chairs, in addition to supports for the weapons. As in the conventional shooting competition, rules vary according to the event, distance, type of target, firing position, number of shots and the time to shoot. The target has 10 circles, worth different scores, and the middle circle, called the bullseye and the smallest of all, is worth 10 points.

The top 8 qualifying athletes progress to the Final. In the Final the winner is the athlete with the highest score.

DID YOU KNOW?

Jonas Jacobsson holds the second most medals in the history of the Paralympic Games. He participated in the last nine editions of the event (1980-2012), winning 30 medals – 17 gold, four silver and nine bronze. Since a career in shooting lasts a long time, Jacobsson may increase his medal collection.

WHILE YOU WATCH

It is forbidden to use flash to take pictures, and mobile phones must be turned off or put in silent mode.
